

SBTI Community Corner

SBTI has become a part of supporting a local High School Robotics Technology Group in Howell NJ through our East Windsor, New Jersey office. Seen below are the group's team advisor Rich Morgan and the President of the club Greg Wheeler working on one of the clubs robots.

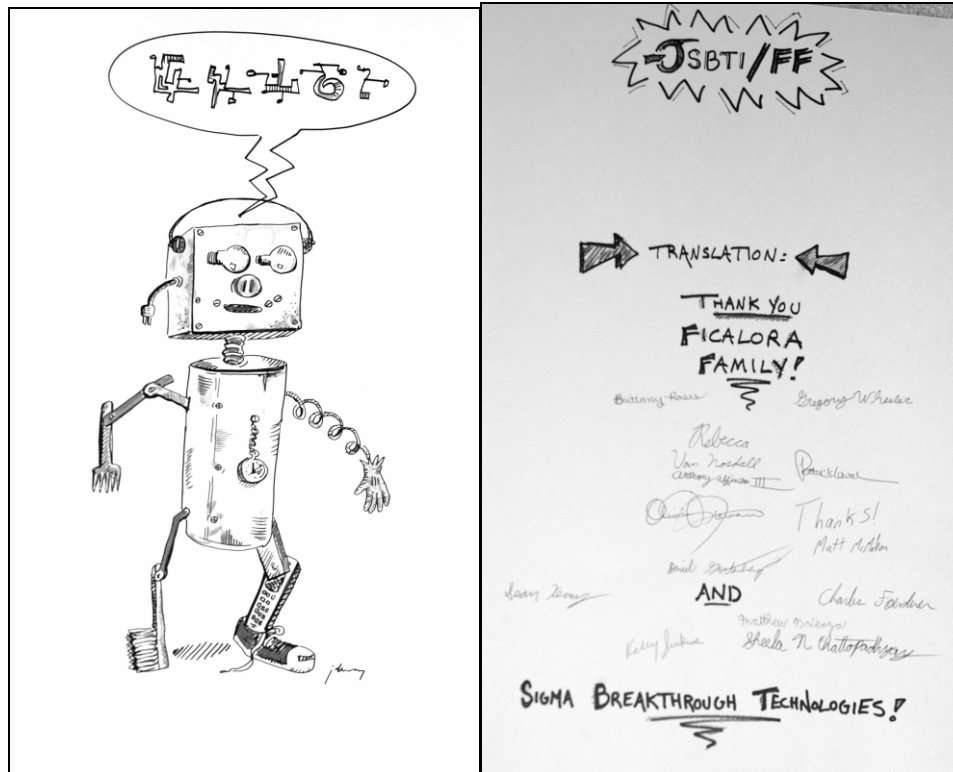

The Howell High School Rebel Robotics group was established in 2005 and has competed in local, state and regional robotics competitions as part of FIRST's FRC and FVC robotics leagues. These competitions are full of energy and points are awarded for both automated robotics tasks and guided tasks while good sportsmanship abounds everywhere!

SBTI's Vice President of Technology, Joe Ficalora presented the team with a check from sponsor SBTI, and a matching contribution from the Ficalora Family. These funds help the team with transportation costs, robot kit purchases and entry fees, which total into the thousands each year.

The club also sent SBTI a very unique thank you card, which was drawn by a Howell HS art teacher who also is a professional cartoonist. The front page is shown below:
